"Rome was not built in a day." Structures that last are built upon firm foundations, deeply laid. Such construction takes time.

The BERBERICH foundation was deep dug 53 years ago. Few people cast their eyes in our direction when the "corner-stone" was laid, carved deep with those characteristic words, Courage, Courtesy and Character, and laden with Honest Purpose. But the business thus started attracted the Washington public. The trade that grew throughout the years was heard about in the innermost councils of the princes of the shoe manufacturing industry. They sought our ever-growing wholesale orders and made inducements for these orders that eventually grew into proportions that far outstripped what had been the manufacturers' highest hopes of wholesale selling.

Is it, therefore, any wonder that of all the retail shoe stores throughout the United States, BERBERICH'S alone were able to interest big manufacturers (or rather, at first, a single big manufacturer) of the possible ultimate benefits from prices on men's shoes that seemed ruinous in their lowness when first put forth by these stores—alone.

That was a year ago. The light of that wisdom spread, and at this time of our 53rd Anniversary we are able to announce equally as startling Reduced Price News on women's shoes—a thing much harder to accomplish owing to the style intricacies and greater leather variety, etc., that go to make up women's shoes, necessarily increasing their cost of production and making more difficult prices based on material and labor costs alone—for a woman's shoe out of style is almost a total loss to the unfortunate retailer having it in his possession.
